"Sing 'Hail to you—
Good day to you—
And that's what I shall say!"

What this town needs is secret baseball scores, and the death penalty for those who break our hearts every day by revealing them.

"Tattle tale tit,
Your tongue shall be split,
And every little dog in town,
Shall have a little bit."

The quest of wicked Senators who use a reporter's ear for a megaphone goes on with all the zeal of a dry sleuth in hot pursuit of a bootlegger—a great show of activity but very few results.

The danger in the present situation at the Senate is that the Unholy Alliance of Democrats and Insurgents will put over a coup d'état and repeal the rule relating to secret sessions, and thus destroy a safeguard greatly in the public interest. Behind closed doors Senators can tell the truth about unworthy men nominated for office, and facts can be brought out which many would hesitate to disclose in public, but why not adopt a simple amendment to the rules, preserving secrecy of executive debate, while providing for the publication of all results after the action is taken?

Six-year-old Kentucky child convicted of killing his juvenile playmate with a shotgun is sentenced to fifteen years, but what's the age of discretion for jurors out in the "Dark and Bloody Ground?"

The Bureau of Efficiency finds receiving day facilities at the District Jail shockingly inadequate, and recommends private booths in which prisoners may enjoy that exclusiveness to which they are entitled, but it's understood that Harry Sinclair hasn't suffered much lately.

Depriving reporters of the privileges of the floor of the Senate will never be serious as long as there are amiable Senators who enjoy the privileges of the Press Gallery.

The Republicans of the House bind themselves hand and foot with a gag rule on the tariff bill that will deprive any Representative of the right to offer an amendment in the interest of his constituents, confining this Constitutional privilege to members of the Ways and Means Committee, as to certain favored sections. Can't read and can't write are no more, and the House today is governed by a Soviet that sits in Moscow instead of St. Petersburg, which has raised despotism to a point undreamed of by the Peter the Great and the Tsar the Terrible of the past. Kowtow, boys!

Moscow dispatch reports that two high officials and a distinguished professor have been shot at sunrise for trying to start an insurgent movement. Monkeying with the Soviet is just as dangerous as monkeying with the Romanoffs.

The tariff bill will be voted on Tuesday so that'll be a good time for the Democrats to get in some practice at the golf club.

Democrats inclined to grumble at the autocracy of the House leadership—and "Uncle Joe" couldn't do any better himself—may console themselves with the reflection that when Oscar Underwood put his famous bill through he didn't have to rely on a gag rule—with the "binding caucus" behind him he didn't need one.

"Heavy, heavy hangs over thy poor head."

The get-rich-quick brigade in Wall Street shudder every time they think of the big mallet of the Federal Reserve Board.

The Graf Zeppelin by this time is back in the home hanger, but we expect to welcome it over here later in the season. You can't keep an eagle on its perch.

Canny Jack Garner refuses to pull any Republican debutante chestnuts out of the fire for the Senate, and it might be a wholesome thing for the party hereafter if Joe Robinson would keep in touch with him every day and get a few ideas.

The German reparations agents at Paris seem to be optimistically pessimistic over the cheerful hopelessness of the brilliantly gloomy outlook.

All a Senator has to do is to get up and deny that he was accurately reported in that newspaper vote on Lemnoot, so far we haven't heard the boys calling their extra papers.

What the Senate really needs, as a Wilson Democrat would say, is a pifflous publicity.

It is encouraging to learn that the Davis Cup contest against Japan won't stimulate the Naval Committee to a demand for increased armaments.

NORRIS CHALLENGES COMMITTEE POWER

Right to Subpoena Reporter or to Hold Hearings Is Denied by Nebraskan.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The fight of the Senate regulars to preserve the sanctity of their secret roll calls resolved yesterday into an effort to save their senatorial dignity, and it was apparent that hardly more than two senators—Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Bingham, of Connecticut, had any hope of doing this.

Throughout a field day of laughter from the galleries and laughter from senators themselves, precipitated by the attack of Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, these two senators alone sat with countenances that were pained and strained, with the alarming question, "What is the world coming to?" clearly staring in their expressions.

The young Wisconsin senator reeled for half an hour or more with taunts and gibes. Why didn't the senators investigate themselves, or if they insisted on pursuing the newspaper men why not investigate every one that has ever worked in Washington?

Reed's Secretary Is Cited. He produced some dispatches written by Theodore A. Huntley that discussed freely and accurately the happenings of executive sessions. Huntley is now the secretary to Senator Reed.

He cited sundry stories on the recent Lemnoot case, sent out by the Associated Press, and sent out by other correspondents, all describing what transpired behind the closed doors. Why were they not punished, too? he wanted to know.

To add to the gay mood in which he put the Senate and the galleries, all save Reed and Bingham, he inadvertently referred to Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, as the "extinguished senator."

And he declared that in so far as he was concerned he would reserve the right first enunciated by his "illustrious predecessor" to tell his constituents.

La Follette Ready for Test. "The question is," he declared, "whether I am more obligated under the Constitution to tell my constituents how I voted or whether I am more bound to the rules of the Senate." And if in exercising this right to confide in his constituents he is expelled from the Senate, he said, then "I am willing to submit to the elections of Wisconsin."

It has become apparent that the rules committee in summoning Paul R. Mallon, of the United Press, to appear before it Monday with the threat that if he did not divulge the source of his information for the Lemnoot roll call he would be sent to jail, really had in mind that the offending senator would come forward or in some way his identity would be disclosed.

This seems to be what Senator Reed intended at least. He was yesterday a man considerably changed from his fighting demeanor of a few days previous when he declared that if Mallon stood on the "so-called ethics of his so-called profession" and refused to

Jensen Ship Quits Air As 2 Pilots Wrangle

Plan New Endurance Record Attempt Today As Clarke Yields.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., May 23 (A.P.). Four rips in the fabric-covered fuselage by the refueling hook caused the single-motored monoplane Three Musketeers to abandon its second attempt at a refueling endurance record at 8:19 Eastern daylight saving time tonight.

Lieut. H. B. Clarke, financial backer of the flight, brought the plane to a perfect landing after 23 hours and 28 minutes aloft. The landing revealed a disagreement between Clarke and Martin Jensen, holder of the unofficial solo endurance record, who, with William Ulrich, comprised the remainder of the crew.

Later they announced they would be ready for a third attempt tomorrow morning.

Jensen said he objected to coming down because the framework of the ship was not damaged and repairs could have been made in the air. Clarke admitted this probably was true, but added that Jensen stood on a control wire when he went back in the fuselage to try to fix the torn fabric. The lieutenant

U. S. LEADING JAPAN IN DAVIS CUP TENNIS

Hennessey Beats Abe in Four Sets; Van Ryn Ahead of Yohita at Dusk.

NOTABLES SEE MATCHES

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH (Sports Editor of The Post).

The flashing rackets of John Hennessey, of Indianapolis, and John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., staked the United States to a commanding lead over Japan in the American zone semifinals of the Davis Cup tennis tournament yesterday. America's youthful duo repulsed almost completely the Far Eastern threat in the first two singles matches.

Before a notable assemblage that counted among its number Mrs. Herbert Hoover, the Japanese Ambassador and Mrs. Kato Debuchi, and Ambassadors Von Pottwitz of Germany and Padilla of Spain, Minister Bostrom of Sweden, Mme. Claudel, wife of the French Ambassador, and Princess de Ligne, wife of the Belgian Ambassador, the youthful Americans turned back unexpectedly stubborn opposition on the part of the Japanese, although approaching dusk thwarted the completeness of their triumph.

Hennessey disposed of Tamio Abe, diminutive Japanese hope, in a hard-fought but perfunctory match in four sets, 8-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, but it remained for the Van Ryn-Yohita Ohta encounter to provide the spectacle of the day's play, although darkness cut short the duel with the young American leading, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, in sets, and four games to two in the fourth set, when play was called at 6:30 by prearrangement.

The supreme confidence of an American victory that had been felt for weeks preceding the matches was dispelled in a measure by the underrated strength displayed by the Japanese pair, who harassed the youthful Americans at every point, but failed to match their stamina and more forceful play.

After Hennessey had disposed of Abe, reckoned the more formidable of the

R. H. LUCAS TO HEAD INTERNAL REVENUE

Hoover to Send Kentuckian's Name to Senate to Succeed D. H. Blair.

WAS OPPOSED BY MELLON

Robert H. Lucas, of Louisville, will be named United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue to succeed David H. Blair, according to authoritative information obtained here last night.

The name of the Kentuckian is expected to be sent to the Senate today or the first of next week by the President.

In naming Mr. Lucas to the post vacated by the resignation of Mr. Blair, the President will go a long way toward solving the patronage problem put up to him by Republicans of the Bluegrass State, which went heavily for him in the election, but to do so he will be going counter to the wishes of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who favored the appointment of Charles R. Nash, of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Lucas, Collector of Internal Revenue for Kentucky for the last eight years, was put forward for Commissioner of Internal Revenue several years ago when it was first rumored that Mr. Blair was to resign. In the meantime, or at the time of the last State election in Kentucky, he was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

During recent consideration of a successor to Mr. Blair, administration officials who handle some of the patronage matters for the President, sought to induce Mr. Lucas to give up his quest for the commissioner's post and accept that of an Assistant Postmaster General. Mr. Lucas declined, however, having made up his mind previously that he would rather remain in Louisville as collector if he were not named commissioner.

Mr. Lucas and Senator Sackett, of Kentucky, were visitors at the White House yesterday afternoon at the invitation of the President. They left in a highly satisfactory mood and, though neither definitely said the appointment had been made, Mr. Lucas is understood to have taken a train for Louisville with the assurance he would have Mr. Blair's place. Maj. E. S. Helburn, of Middleboro, is expected to be named collector to succeed Mr. Lucas at Louisville.

Industry Drafting In War Proposed

Good Says Bill to Conscript Man Power Will Await New Measures.

Bills giving the President wide powers to draft industry in time of war will be ready for submission to Congress within 90 days, Secretary of War Good said yesterday. A bill to enable the President to conscript man power for Army service in time of emergency was introduced in Congress earlier this month. It was severely criticized, even by administration Congressmen, because there was no provision for similar conscription of industry.

As the United Press revealed Tuesday, the War Department will not seek enactment of the man-power conscription bill until the industrial legislation is ready for simultaneous action. Justice demands this delay, in Good's opinion. "It would be unjust," he said yesterday, "to pass a law to draft man power without provision for drafting the industrial group which will produce materials the soldiers will use."

GERMAN QUILTS; DEBT DEADLOCK END SEEN NEAR

Dr. Voegler's Withdrawal as Aid to Schacht Held Climax to Parley.

CHIEF'S RESIGNATION SCOUTED BY BERLIN

Paris Gloomy on Outcome, Believing Chances of Survival Are Even.

SOCIALISTS REQUEST U. S. JOIN TOTAL CUT

Discussions With French and Americans Fail to Throw Light on Situation.

Berlin, May 23 (A.P.).—The dramatic withdrawal of Dr. Albert Voegler from the German delegation to the Paris reparations conference was regarded here tonight as the culminating point of the deadlock over the negotiations, although it was not considered as necessarily involving a breakdown of the conference.

Official denial was made tonight that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht had resigned as chief of the German delegation to the reparations revision conference at Paris. The foreign office had talked to the delegation by telephone only an hour before and it was said that such a possibility was not even hinted at.

Different interpretations of Dr. Voegler's motives in the German press have already fanned political passions to a considerable heat.

Voegler Confirms Withdrawal. Dr. Voegler today confirmed his verbal decision to withdraw from the German government in writing. The text of his letter was not available tonight, but he doubtless will declare he was unable conscientiously to agree to the allied counter-proposals to extend payments of reparations beyond 37 years or to the safeguard clause as amended.

Official spokesmen said his decision had been reached independently and the impression was due to pressure from heavy industrial interests was highly prejudicial to German standing abroad.

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, organ of the Industrialists, supports this position. It characterized as "pure swindle" assertions elsewhere that Dr. Voegler's withdrawal was due to "revolt of the Ruhr magnates."

It categorically stated, "Never during the whole course of the Paris negotiations has any industrial group made any attempt whatsoever to influence the German delegation in any direction."

One Paper Vindicates Doctor.

The financial journal, Boersen-Courier, distinctly disapproved the Ruhr industry's attitude on the charge of dictating their policy to Dr. Voegler. On the other hand, the Voestische Zeitung and the Tageblatt raised definite accusations against the Ruhr industrialists for having put "enormous business and social pressure upon Dr. Voegler, who is on the directorates of the whole range of industrial concerns."

The Acht Uhr Abendblatt condemns Dr. Voegler's withdrawal. It said the withdrawal was precipitate because he should have awaited the text of the creditors' reply to the report and the German reservations, and superfluous because the German delegation as a whole will find it impossible to accept the allied terms.

Boerse Closes Firm. The Berlin Boerse took a philosophical view of the resignation and closed firm after a weak opening of buying and selling on the basis of the announcement that Dr. Albert Voegler, colleague of Dr. Schacht, had resigned and that his place had been taken by Dr. Ludwig Kastl.

Pessimism Shrouds Conference. Clouds of pessimism hung tonight over the headquarters of the German delegation to the reparations conference, after two discussions this afternoon with American and allied experts had failed to aid progress of the negotiations.

The fate of the conference was regarded as still hanging in the balance, but a sudden break-up is thought now quite as probable as an agreement. "It is even money," was the way the situation was summed up this evening at conference headquarters.

The final decision was expected before the end of the week, although no plenary session was forecast for tomorrow. Most of the experts have

The sliding scale sugar tariff plan also was said to have been rejected. The conference did not bind the Republicans to support the committee amendments nor were these amendments put to a vote in the conference.

COMMITTEE GIVEN FLOOR PRECEDENCE

Concessions to Farm Group Made in Revisions on Several Products.

(Associated Press.)

After two sessions lasting more than six hours, House Republicans patched up a majority of their differences over the pending tariff bill yesterday and approved a rule calling for a vote on the measure by 9 o'clock Tuesday.

The rule, adopted by a vote of 309 to 24 in the caucus, was subsequently approved by the rules committee by a strict party vote of 8 to 3. It will be taken up in the House today under plans calling for one hour's debate. After adoption of the rule, the bill will be taken up for amendment.

Under the rule, members of the ways and means committee would be given preference in suggesting amendments at any time during reading of the bill. The Republican members of that committee made public yesterday 91 amendments which the committee will offer to the bill, including proposals for higher rates on hides, leather and shoes, cattle, butter and other farm products. Various Republican committee members will introduce the amendments on the floor.

No Other Items to Change.

No other items except those affected by such committee amendments should be subject to changes on the floor.

committee amendments at that time only three pages of the voluminous Fordney-McCumber law was read. While most of the amendments reported yesterday by the Ways and Means committee are intended merely to perfect the bill, many involve rate changes. These generally represent increases.

Other committee amendments would provide rate changes as follows: Chalk, increased to 4-10 of a cent from 4 of a cent a pound. Soapstone, changed to 7 of a cent a pound from 30 per cent ad valorem. Machines for manufacturing full fashion hosiery, 48 per cent, a new rate. Pecans, shelled and unshelled, increased from 3 to 6 cents a pound to 8 and 10 cents, respectively. Cotton gloves made on a warp-knitting machine, increased to 60 from 50 per cent. Cotton clothing not specially provided for, increased to 37 1/2 from 35 per cent.

Lithographic Paper Rise.

Lithographic paper, increased to 4 1/2 cents a pound and 10 per cent from 4 1/2 cents a pound. Bristles, reduced to 3 from 7 cents a pound. Matches, increased to 20 cents a gross from 11 cents; when imported other than in boxes containing not more than 100 matches each, increased to 2 cents per 1,000 matches from 1 cent. Commercial elastic fabric belting over 12 inches in width, 60 per cent, new classification. Cowhide gloves, 25 per cent, now free. Saddles of leather not specially provided for and leather shoe laces, 15 per cent, now free. Cigar and cigarette holders, increased to 40 per cent and 5 cents each from 30 per cent.

Concessions to the farm group were given in proposed amendments to give hides, a free list commodity, a 10 per cent duty and to raise the rates on butter, live cattle, dried skinned milk, white potatoes, figs, canned tomatoes and certain grass seeds.

Leather Increase Provided.

Fins of New England shoe manufacturers and leather tanners of the East were recognized in amendments to levy duties of 20 per cent on leather boots and shoes, and rates ranging from 12 1/2 to 30 per cent on leather, also now on the free list.

Another amendment affecting the proposed new rayon schedule was described as restoring the protection accorded rayon in the silk schedule of existing law. The pending bill has been interpreted as lowering the average protection given rayon now by about 8 per cent.

Whether the proposed amendments to the agricultural schedule were sufficient to satisfy the farm group was not ascertained. The Republican committee men did not meet requests which had been advanced for higher duties on casin and blackstrap molasses, for making tapioca and sago, now free, dutiable.

Building Materials Unchanged.

Building materials also were left as they are in the bill in the committee amendment list.

An indication of determined moves against the flexible provisions of the bill which were severely criticized Wednesday by Representative Beck (Republican, Pennsylvania), was seen in an announcement by Representative Garner of Texas, minority leader, that he would seek to recommit the measure for incorporation of his plan of a tariff act-finding board of four, responsible only to Congress.

Garner's plan would repeal the flexible provisions authorizing the President to change rates and is designed to eliminate general revisions of the tariff by permitting Congress to make piece-meal changes as individual bills are introduced.

Garner also will ask that the bill be recommitted to strike out a provision limiting the jurisdiction of the Customs Court in reappraisement cases.

Garner Sees G. O. F. Support.

As for the repeal of the flexible clause, Garner said he not only hoped, but had reason to believe his plan "will have considerable support from the Republican membership, especially in the Senate."

The more important amendments which the ways and means committee will offer to the bill call for a raise in the rates on live cattle to 2 cents a pound on cattle weighing under 800 pounds and 2 1/2 cents above that weight. Existing rates, undisturbed in the bill, are 1 1/2 cents under 1,000 pounds and 2 cents above that figure.

Butter and butter substitutes would be raised to 14 from 12 cents; white potatoes, to 75 from 50 cents 100 pounds; canned tomatoes, to 40 from 25 per cent; dried skinned milk and dried buttermilk, to 2 1/2 from 1 1/2 cents a pound, and onions, to 2 instead of 1 1/2 cents a pound.

Blackstrap molasses, to 2 1/2 cents a gallon on blackstrap molasses for distilling purposes would be wiped out and the rate restored to 1-8 of a cent as at present.

Fig Raise to 4 Cents Pound.

Figs would be raised to 4 cents a pound from 2 and preserved figs to 40 from 35 per cent ad valorem. Bluegrass and tall oat seed would be changed to 5 cents instead of 2 cents a pound.

The leather rates would provide for a 12 1/2 cents a pound duty on sole of billings leather, leather welting and leather for use in harness and saddlery. A 15 per cent rate would be given for side upper leather, patent and leather made from calf or kip skins and all rough, partly finished, finished or curried leather not specially provided for. A 30 per cent rate would be placed on upholstery bag, case or strap leather and 5 per cent on leather from hides or animals other than of the bovine species. The latter rate was introduced to 10 if the leather was imported for use in shoes.

Fancy Leather Duty.

Fancy leather for use in shoes would be dutiable at 30 per cent. Cotton belt and ropes for transmission of power would be raised to 40 per cent from 30; cotton gloves made on a warp-knitting machine to 60 from 50 per cent; cotton clothing not specially provided for, to 37 1/2 from 35 per cent; cotton shirt collars and cuffs not specially provided for, to 30 cents a dozen pieces, and 10 per cent. Bleached spun silk or yarn of silk and rayon would be changed under another amendment to 50 from 45 per cent. Silk velvet ribbons would be changed to 60 per cent as against the proposed bill duty of 70 per cent on cut and 65 per cent on partly cut ribbons.

Plate Glass Gets Decrease.

Plate glass, not exceeding 384 square inches, would be changed from 16 to 12 1/2 cents a square foot. Menthol would be raised to 75 from 50 cents a pound and olive oil to 8 1/2 from 7 1/2 cents a pound.

Cotton wiping rags would be given a duty of 2 cents a pound, cod liver oil cake and meal would be made free of duty, and wood tar and pitch of wood and tar oil would be transferred from the free list and made dutiable at 1 cent a pound.

Bentwood furniture would be raised to 55 per cent from 40 per cent, while textile machinery not specially provided for would be boosted to 40 from 35 per cent.

BOARD IS HESITANT TO LIFT BANK RATE

Mellon and Reserve Officials Remain Silent, Despite Tense Situation.

MAY RELY ON "WARNINGS"

Secretary Mellon, as an ex officio member of the Federal Reserve Board, attended the session of the board yesterday. Although a spirit of tension prevails in financial circles awaiting the action on an anticipated rise in the discount rate, there was no announcement forthcoming.

The board has been meeting in almost daily session, and the credit situation, but members of the board refuse to discuss any phase of the situation.

Failure of the board to make any announcement in regard to the rise in the discount rate to 6 per cent, as recommended by the advisory council Tuesday, has given strength to the long-standing rumor that the members are hesitant to do that far. It would place the discount rate almost on a level with prevailing money rates.

The opinion still prevails that the board is hopeful of having the situation adjusted through market forces and the members are therefore cautious "regard to sending it higher."

Those who are following the situation, however, point to published opinions that the discount rate outlook has been exaggerated as an influence on the market. It is claimed that the Federal Reserve banks have made application for an increase in the discount rate and that these were the subject of the discussion in which the Secretary of the Treasury participated.

The fact that the board is continuing to carefully study every phase of the credit situation and is not ready to act, however, is a foregone conclusion. The decline in brokers' loans for the week reported last Friday, understood to have had a cheering effect.

The high record for the discount rate is 7 per cent, which was about ten years ago, and because the present level is the highest in more recent years, is also expected to have its effect on any action by the board.

Those familiar with the work of the reserve board here are still puzzled over the procedure of the board in making public the advisory council's recommendation, with the statement that it had been authorized to do so. In the past the recommendations have never been given out in this way.

It has given more credence to the theory that the board is hesitating to deal with the credit situation other than through warnings. In this connection the announcement of Tuesday is the third warning in the right for "voluntary adjustment."

New York, May 23 (N.Y.W.S.).—The sword of Damocles still hangs over the head of speculative Wall Street. After two days of confusion and uncertainty, during which weak marginal holders have again been eliminated to the benefit of persons better able to carry stocks without recourse to borrowing, the ominous sounding statement of the Federal Reserve bank yesterday that no announcement had been made regarding the discount rate. This carries the presumption that the Reserve Board is still unable to make up the collective mind as to what should be done, and that the 5 per cent rate will be retained for at least another week.

Roosevelt Will Accept Porto Rico Governorship

Shanghai, May 23 (A.P.).—Kermit Roosevelt, member of the Roosevelt Field Museum expedition to the interior of Asia, who arrived here today en route home said that his brother, Theodore, had decided to accept the governorship of Porto Rico.

Mr. Roosevelt, who arrived aboard the steamer Trenton, said that he and his brother and other members of the expedition were planning another month's hunting at Saigon and then would return to the United States, he himself was hurrying to New York for business reasons. He expected to reach San Francisco by June 12. He was taking with him the skeleton and skin of an excellent specimen of the panda, a rare bear-like animal peculiar to the hinterland plateau of the Asiatic continent.

Absent-Minded Teacher Forgets to Give Tests

New York, May 23 (U.P.).—A section of Columbia University was thrown into confusion today when Prof. Parker T. Moon, instructor of the international relations class, absent-mindedly went on his summer vacation without giving his students their final examination.

Primed with dates and loaded with historical data, the colleagues entered Prof. Moon's classroom prepared for the worst. They waited—and waited—and waited.

Finally it was discovered that Prof. Moon had happily divested himself of academic worries and left town.

A telegram from the college to Prof. Moon recalled his young hopefuls to his mind, and he will return Friday to put them through their paces.

BOY, 6, GETS 15 YEARS FOR KILLING LAD OF 8

Kentucky Jury Convicts Child While He Plays in Court; Shot Playmate.

Paintsville, Ky., May 23 (A.P.).—A small boy who prattled unconcernedly with playmates while a jury tried him on a manslaughter charge tonight faced a sentence of almost fifteen years in a reform school for slaying an 8-year-old child, following an altercation over a piece of scrap iron from the two sought to sell to a junk dealer.

The boy, Carl Newton Mahan, 6 1/2 years old, was sentenced by a jury in a court today to serve years in a reform school for slaying an 8-year-old child, following an altercation over a piece of scrap iron from the two sought to sell to a junk dealer.

The boy, Carl Newton Mahan, 6 1/2 years old, was sentenced by a jury in a court today to serve years in a reform school for slaying an 8-year-old child, following an altercation over a piece of scrap iron from the two sought to sell to a junk dealer.

Although juvenile cases usually are tried without jury counsel for the defense had declined to waive and the case was tried by a jury which deliberated 30 minutes before bringing in a guilty verdict. Judge John Butcher pronounced the sentence.

John Wheeler, defense counsel, announced he would file a motion for a new trial. He indicated the motion will be filed tomorrow.

While the Mahan youngster played with other children in the courtroom, apparently not realizing what was going on, Paul C. Hester, a witness, testified that the boy had told him he shot his playmate because the Van Hoeses meant to kill Van Hoeses and that he meant to kill Van Hoeses.

Mrs. Manuel Fitzpatrick, a neighbor, testified she heard a quarrel from her kitchen, but that the sounds ceased as she decided matters had been patched up. The quarrel, she said, was over a piece of scrap iron which the youngsters had found in the yard.

Following the quarrel, testimony was that the boy, who is of average size for his age, ran into the house, climbed on a chair and took his father's shotgun from the wall, went out on the porch, leveled the gun at his erstwhile playmate and fired. The trigger was pulled and the boy's playmate was killed.

Mrs. John Mahan, mother of the defendant and wife of a jury driver, testified her son told her he did not know the gun was loaded. Mrs. Fitzpatrick, however, said she heard the child threaten to get a gun and kill his playmate, but did not go out as she thought the threats were idle.

That a question of law will be raised tomorrow when the defense files motion for a new trial appeared almost certain tonight, when it was indicated that the defense will contend there is no law in Kentucky by which a child under 10 years old can be sent to reform school.

SOVIET EXECUTES 3 ON TREASON CHARGE

Two Officials and Professor Are Killed for Attempt to Overthrow Union.

FATE TOLD IN TERSE NOTE

Moscow, May 23 (A.P.).—Two high Soviet officials and a professor at the Leningrad Mining Institute have been executed by order of the state political administration for "counter-revolutionary" activity, an official communique announced today.

The three men were sentenced to death yesterday and the communique tersely concluded with the words: "The death sentences have been carried out."

The men were Von Meck and Velichko, both of whom were recently officials of the committee of communications, and Palchinsky, late professor at the Leningrad Mining Institute. Others implicated in the same case were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment.

The communique stated that "the state political department has discovered counter-revolutionary organizations in the railway, transport and gold and platinum industries, which were seeking to overthrow the Soviet power by acts of sabotage and sabotage and organization with the aid of foreign complicity."

Political events of more than passing importance to the future of the Soviet Union have transpired within the past few days.

Alexis Ivanovitch Rykoff has resigned his post as president of the Council of People's Commissars of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic (R. S. F. S. R.), the principal Soviet Republic of the Russian Soviet Union.

M. Rykoff however still retains his post as president of the Council of People's Commissars of the union, or the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics (U. S. S. R.), as it is termed.

It was stated here that resignation of the R. S. F. S. R. post was not considered a disciplinary action by Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the central committee of the Communist party, who nearest approaches the power once held by Nicolas Lenin, but only because he was preoccupied with the duties of chairman of the council of People's Commissars of the Soviet Union, or U. S. S. R.

Mediterranean Fruit Fly Is Found in Texas

Austin, Tex., May 23 (A.P.).—The Mediterranean fruit fly, which has invaded Louisiana, was found in Texas today, according to a statement of agriculture, announced today.

Larvae of the fruit fly were found in a shipment of Florida grape fruit received at Dallas ten days ago.

The infested fruit was ordered destroyed. Commissioner Terrell has ordered State inspectors at all fruit centers to watch for the fly. If the pest gets a good start in Texas, Commissioner Terrell said, it would destroy not only citrus products but peaches and other soft fruits.

London Times Writer Addresses Arts Club

Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times, made an address last night at the Arts Club on the approaching elections in England. He emphasized the seriousness of unemployment in Great Britain and said that one of the principal differences between the three parties—Conservatives, Liberal and Labor—is as to the degree to which the state should intervene to amend economic conditions and the speed with which the intervention should take place.

STIMSON CLARIFIES FRENCH DEBT OFFER

Payment of $400,000,000 May Be Postponed by Signing of Mellon Treaty.

CLAUDEL SENDS MESSAGE

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Secretary of State Stimson yesterday clarified the position which the United States takes in the matter of the French debt and the $400,000,000 payment which France is obligated to make on August 1, next, for purchased American war supplies. The clarification, which means that France must pay the $400,000,000 or ratify the Mellon-Berenger debt funding agreement by August 1, has been communicated to Paul Claudel, the French Ambassador here, and transmitted by him to the French government.

Mr. Stimson's outline of the situation harmonizes with the overwhelming view of the Senate. The only difference is that senators put their comments more bluntly. Instead of saying that France has been asked in the most friendly spirit to realize that she must ratify the debt agreement before August 1 or be prepared to pay the $400,000,000, senators put it in this language: "France can choose between the following three courses: she can pay, she can ratify the debt agreement, or she can default. Nothing else is open to her."

Chance to Pay One Payment.

It develops that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon would be willing to accept a new law in Congress whereby France's ratification of the Mellon-Berenger agreement by August 1 might automatically operate to postpone payment of the $400,000,000 in view of the fact that ratification by the United States Senate might not be possible by that date. This suggestion of Mr. Mellon would be supported at the Capitol and Mr. Stimson explained yesterday that France had been informed of this phase of the situation.

As explained at the State Department, it has become suddenly evident that Congress is going to adjourn and be in recess on August 1, which is the date of the maturity of the French obligation to pay $400,000,000 in payment of war supplies.

That obligation will make it necessary for the Treasury to present that claim on that date unless the Mellon-Berenger agreement modifying that obligation is ratified or unless there is some legislation passed in the meantime. Therefore, the Treasury is now in a position to present that claim to the attention of the French authorities in the friendliest possible way and it is resolved in the Treasury to make the most of the situation.

That obligation will make it necessary for the Treasury to present that claim on that date unless the Mellon-Berenger agreement modifying that obligation is ratified or unless there is some legislation passed in the meantime. Therefore, the Treasury is now in a position to present that claim to the attention of the French authorities in the friendliest possible way and it is resolved in the Treasury to make the most of the situation.

Unless the agreement is ratified, the date of maturity remains August 1, next for the $400,000,000 and there is no way in which that date of maturity can be postponed. Any attempt to persuade Congress to agree to a postponement in the absence of ratification by France would be deemed to be a preposterous proposition.

But the difficulty is that even if the French ratify the Mellon-Berenger agreement between now and August 1, the American ratification must be considered. If the Congress here is not in session, ratification by the United States would not be possible by August 1, and the Treasury Department would be under obligation to present the bill for the $400,000,000.

Coast Guard Wins Freedom in Killing

Jury Acquits Federal Agent Who Shot Motorist for Failing to Halt.

Rochester, N. Y., May 23 (A.P.).—Jennings, 22-year-old Coast Guardsman, was acquitted tonight of manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of Jacob Hanson, secretary of the Niagara Falls Lodge of the I. O. O. F. The jury was out nearly twelve hours.

Hanson was shot when he failed to halt his automobile at the command of Coast Guardsman near Lewiston, May 6, 1928. Jennings was tried in Elmira in January and the jury disagreed. With its verdict the jury handed a paper to Federal Judge John R. Hazel, reading:

"This jury recommends that greater care be exercised in the use of firearms in stopping of vehicles on the public highway."

The jurors said testimony of Capt. James Hatcher, U. S. A., that the bullet which killed the lodge secretary had ricocheted from another object, had much to do with the verdict. Hatcher was the only witness.

become thoroughly tired of the negotiations and at times show nervousness.

At the German headquarters, which are a center of interest since the resignation of Dr. Voegler, Dr. Schuchman and his staff are busily working on the German version of the revised report with the creditors' memorandum. The chief German expert, with his new coadjutor, Dr. Kasil, made two visits to conference headquarters today. The Germans talked first with the Americans and then with the allied experts. Both discussions failed to throw any light on the situation. The Socialist group of the chamber meeting just before the opening of Parliament, adopted a resolution asking the government to declare the Poincare cabinet left to the French experts before it accepted a compromise with the Germans which reduces "the money due France and Belgium for reconstruction of the liberated region."

The group also adopted a resolution declaring itself ready to support all efforts of the United States toward general disarmament.

PRESBYTERIANS NAME M'AFEE MODERATOR

Chicago Professor Is Elected
Over Veteran Princeton, Seminary Teacher.

UNION TO BE CONSIDERED

St. Paul, Minn., May 23 (A.P.).—Dr. Clelland M. McAfee, of Chicago, was elected moderator of the 141st General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America at its opening day session here late today. He defeated Dr. Robert Dick Wilson, of the faculty of Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J., veteran teacher of the church. Dr. McAfee is a professor of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Chicago.

Dr. McAfee was nominated by Dr. Josiah Sibley, of Pasadena, Calif. The nomination was seconded by Frank J. Loesch, Chicago attorney, who was recently appointed to President Hoover's Crime Commission.

The vote for Dr. McAfee was 572, while Dr. Wilson received 332.

Both nominees scholars.

Dr. Wilson was nominated by Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, of Monticello, Ind. Dr. J. C. Barr, of New Orleans, seconded the nomination. Both men were referred to as veteran scholars of the church to whom the body owes obligation for long and sincere service.

Dr. McAfee is the son of Dr. John Armstrong McAfee, a founder of Park College, of Parkville, Mo., a Presbyterian institution. He has been pastor of the Forty-first Street Presbyterian Church, Chicago, and the LaFayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, of Brooklyn, N. Y. During the World War, he was director of the religious work department of the Y. M. C. A., with the American expeditionary forces.

Election of the moderator was the principal business of the first session of the six-day meeting which faces a large variety of problems, including recognition of women in the church, disagreements over the management of the Princeton Theological Seminary, and proposed union with other reformed churches.

Says Religion Rests With Youth.

That modern youth is capable of reconstructing the present social order to the highest level yet attained or of wrecking today's civilization was the assertion made before the assembly in an address this evening by Norman E. Richardson, head of the department of religious education, of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, of Chicago.

Religion can be perpetuated only by the sympathetic education of youth, Dr. Richardson said, observing that each generation must be taught the lessons of an older generation and that religion can not be perpetuated biologically.

To encourage its youth the church should offer it places of honor and responsibility, Dr. Richardson said. He frowned upon the inclination of members of older generations in continuing to hold church office for long periods, thus preventing the participation of youth in religious activities.

have been attached to the embassy guard.

With Mr. Morrow were Edward P. Lowry, third secretary of the embassy; Arthur Springer, private secretary of the ambassador; Hal Mangum, owner of a ranch in Coahuila where Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was a guest last December; and Harold Walker, vice president of the Huasteca Oil Co. The ambassador was in a happy mood when he bade farewell at the station to the staff of the embassy and American newspapermen. He expects to return to his post in July but in the meantime he will attend the marriage of his daughter, Anne, to Col. Lindbergh, Laredo, Tex., May 23 (A.P.).

Accompanied by an escort of 30 soldiers from the staff of President Porfirio Gil, of Mexico, Dwight W. Morrow, U. S. ambassador to Mexico, reached here late today from the Mexican capital.

Although the ambassador said he was making a "vacation trip" home, he gave the impression that he had returned to the United States for the marriage of his daughter, Anne, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. The soldiers on the special car, he said, were sent by the Mexican government "merely as a courtesy."

He said the marriage of his daughter and the flier of New York-to-Paris fame "will take place while I am on this trip north." He said he would go directly to his home at Englewood, N. J., without visiting Washington. He declined to discuss the Mexican revolution. The rebels frequently have attacked Mr. Morrow and his policies. The opinion was expressed here that the soldiers might have been on the car to protect the ambassador against a possible attack since conditions still are unsettled in portions of Mexico.

PAPAL NEWSPAPER LAUDS EINSTEIN RAP

Cardinal O'Connell's Attack on Scientist Justified, Says Osservatore.

CALLS THEORY ATHEISM

Vatican City, May 23 (A.P.).—Osservatore Romano in an editorial today says that Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, was perfectly right in denouncing the theories of Dr. Albert Einstein recently.

The paper, which is used by the Vatican frequently for official announcements, commends the American cardinal, declaring that in the professor's theories was a "tendency to cut off faith in God from human life. This is authentic atheism, even if camouflaged as cosmic pantheism."

In an address at Boston last month Cardinal O'Connell warned the New England province of the Catholic Clubs of America against Dr. Einstein's theory of relativity as "befogged speculation producing universal doubt about God and His creation" and "cloaking the ghastly apparition of atheism."

Dr. Einstein, when told of the cardinal's statement, said that it left him cold and devoid of interest, adding that he was wholly disinclined to enter into a controversy with the cardinal. Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein, of New York, later made public a message he had received from Dr. Einstein saying: "I believe in Spinoza's God who reveals himself in the orderly harmony in being, not in God who deals with the fates and actions of men."

AIRPORT VOTE LIKELY AT SPECIAL SESSION

getting the airport bill through that body.

The Congressional Airport Commission will meet this morning to consider the terms of the bill which it will report out to the Senate and House. Senator Bingham has drafted a bill, but so far its provisions have not been made public.

The terms of the bill, of course, will be important. Whether the District Commissioners approve the measure will depend on what plan is provided for paying for the airport. In a report which they submitted to Chairman Bingham, the Commissioners urged that the project be paid for on a 50-50 basis—that is, 50 per cent by the Federal Government and 50 per cent by the District government.

In agreeing to let the airport bill come up during the special session, Speaker Longworth and Representative Shell took the same view that scores of experts have taken with regard to an airport for Washington. They recognized that an airport is badly needed here and that Congress would be wise to act now instead of waiting for the regular session, beginning in December.

Assuming that the District Commissioners approve the bill to be reported out by the Congressional Airport Commission, the measure should be passed quickly, for every senator and representative who has ever been sounded on the question has come out in favor of a Washington airport.

Eight Injured in Quakes At Mendoza, Argentina

Mendoza, Argentina, May 23 (A.P.).—Eight persons were injured, some seriously, in a series of strong earthquakes early this morning. Many buildings were so badly shaken that their walls were cracked, and in some cases walls fell, causing casualties.

The earth movement caused great alarm in the city, which is an important trading point for commerce between Buenos Aires and Chile. The earthquake interrupted wire communication with Chile. Mendoza was overthrown by an earthquake in 1861.

MacMurray Reported
Considered for Tokyo

Shanghai, China, May 23 (A.P.).—The British North China News printed a special Tokyo dispatch today stating it had learned that President Hoover was "seriously thinking of appointing John Van A. MacMurray, Minister at Peking, as Ambassador at Tokyo."

The dispatch added, however, that there was some doubt as to whether the appointment would go through because of the attitude of the Japanese government. It was stated that Japanese consular officials felt that Mr. MacMurray had often acted "single handed" regarding affairs in China in which all the powers were concerned, and when he should have consulted the other foreign representatives for joint action.

DETECTIVE'S DEATH LAID TO PRISONER

Crime Fastened on Jim Coyne,
Beer Hustler, by Deputy Police Head.

MANY HOODLUMS GRILLED

Chicago, May 23 (A.P.).—Jimmy Coyne, termed by police a beer hustler for Joseph "Red" Bolton's bootleg liquor dispensary, was named by Deputy Police Commissioner Stege today as the slayer of Detective Joseph Sullivan, active in gang slaying and extortion cases, who was shot down yesterday in Bolton's West Side saloon.

A half dozen hoodlums gathered around "Red's" bar were in custody, and Bolton himself was threatened with a murder charge as he glumly refused to name the men who were there when Sullivan was killed.

From unwilling witnesses Stege drew enough, he said, to fix upon Coyne the guilt for Sullivan's hand-to-hand fight that ended when five bullets entered the young detective's head and body.

Coyne said he handled the bottles of beer trade for Bolton, who himself dispensed barrel beer.

"I am satisfied Coyne is the man who killed Detective Sullivan," the deputy commissioner said.

Joseph Catrina, a member of the "42" gang, was arrested for questioning. Gang murders came and go, crime gris in the police working day, but "cop killing" strikes anger and an aroused determination for vengeance throughout the force. The killing yesterday of Detective Sullivan was looked upon as a particularly severe blow, not only because Sullivan was one of the aces of the squad which has been working on the Valentine's Day gang massacre, but because he also was on the trail of men who killed Detective Lawrence Martin last week.

Early today Deputy Commissioner Stege, driving ahead to find the killers, was nevertheless openly despondent. Asked what he thought would develop as a result of the Sullivan killing, Stege said:

"Oh, nothing, I suppose. The public doesn't care any more when a policeman is killed."

Fish Customs Suit Goes to U. S. Court

Hoover Orders Case Moved in Rum Search of Launch.

New York, May 23 (A.P.).—By the order of President Hoover, a $3,000 damage suit brought by Guyon Fish, owner of the launch Restless, against Louis M. Brophy, in command of the customs patrol boat Liberty, today was transferred for trial to the United States District Court.

The transfer was made on the request of Brophy in compliance with a law whereby a Government employee, sued for an action which occurred in the performance of his official duties, may on appeal to the President be tried in the Federal courts.

Brophy boarded the Fish launch in New York Bay March 30. Fish charged that he, his wife and his children were placed under restraint at the point of a pistol while the Restless was searched. Brophy admits boarding the Restless, but denies any pistol was used.

Early today Deputy Commissioner Stege, driving ahead to find the killers, was nevertheless openly despondent. Asked what he thought would develop as a result of the Sullivan killing, Stege said:

"Oh, nothing, I suppose. The public doesn't care any more when a policeman is killed."

MacMurray Reported
Considered for Tokyo

Shanghai, China, May 23 (A.P.).—The British North China News printed a special Tokyo dispatch today stating it had learned that President Hoover was "seriously thinking of appointing John Van A. MacMurray, Minister at Peking, as Ambassador at Tokyo."

The dispatch added, however, that there was some doubt as to whether the appointment would go through because of the attitude of the Japanese government. It was stated that Japanese consular officials felt that Mr. MacMurray had often acted "single handed" regarding affairs in China in which all the powers were concerned, and when he should have consulted the other foreign representatives for joint action.

ENJOY YOUR SUMMER VACATION

Plans for a vacation must include a number of details, seemingly unimportant, but you hope to thoroughly enjoy yourself, so a little reflection will convince you of the seriousness of omitting any of the following items:

A SAFE DEPOSIT BOX provides security for the valuable papers or jewels that must be left at home.

TRAVELERS' CHEQUES OR A LETTER OF CREDIT provide you with funds in which the risk of loss is reduced to a minimum.

YOUR WILL should be made and a competent executor appointed before you leave.

ALL-STEEL BUILT like a SAFE

BUT two months ago General Electric announced the first ALL-STEEL refrigerator ever built. Now this outstanding scientific development of the times has been made available in six popular models.

The all-steel refrigerator cannot warp. It is strong—built to last. The doors, fitted by hand at the factory, retain their close fit. The new exterior baked enamel finish, smoothly white, as hard and durable as porcelain, has the added virtue that it does not check or crack.

Coupled with these advantages is the previous perfection of the General Electric mechanism which is permanently self-oiling, hermetically sealed in a steel casing and mounted up on top, safe from dust and difficulties. Quietly, economically, it constantly maintains the temperature in the refrigerator at several safe degrees below the danger line of 50. It freezes ice cubes rapidly.

Yet, notwithstanding these exclusive features these new models are offered at surprisingly low prices and on our plan of conveniently spaced payments. The small family model, at the factory, is priced at $215. New all-steel models in six different sizes at our display rooms invite your inspection.

Listen-in on the General Electric Hour every Saturday, 8 to 9 P.M., Eastern Standard Time, over the N. B. C. network of 42 stations.

LET EACH SENATOR TESTIFY.

The Senate committee on rules doubtless would be glad if it could withdraw from the position in which it has placed itself by proposing to extract from a correspondent the name of the senator who disclosed the secret vote on Irvine L. Lenroot's confirmation. It is a question whether the rules committee has been empowered to summon witnesses, but if it has such power its obvious duty is to summon senators—all of them—and after administering the oath or affirmation, ask each one the direct question: "Did you disclose the vote?"

It is unthinkable that a senator would perjure himself merely to escape the penalty of expulsion. The committee would sooner or later find the culpable senator, if it should interrogate each one, including members of the committee itself. Thereupon it should report the fact to the Senate, which, if it is faithful to its rules, would vote unanimously to expel the offender.

If more than one senator should admit that he had violated the rule, then more than one should be expelled. One by one, with remorseless severity, the Senate should rid itself of the presence of all unworthy members, even if the membership should be so depleted as to make it necessary for the remnant to expel themselves.

Only embarrassment can result from an attempt to extort from the correspondent the name of his informant. In the first place, the committee may not have power to summon witnesses and administer the oath. In the next place, he may demand his witness fee, and the committee may not have been granted a slush fund. Thirdly, he may decline to answer, on the ground that the question does not relate to any subject looking toward legislation; and he would be buttressed by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Mal Daugherty case. Finally, the Senate might have difficulty in mustering a majority in favor of a resolution paving the way for a prosecution for contempt, inasmuch as many senators have disclosed executive session secrets and may be unwilling to run the risk of unlocking the bosoms of newspaper men. While there is a healthy competition among correspondents, there is also an esprit de corps, and if one correspondent under duress should reveal the name of a senator who has disclosed secret business, all the other correspondents might feel that the seal of secrecy had been removed and that all names of delinquent senators should be published. It would be an imposing roll, and would greatly facilitate the Senate in the expulsion of offenders.

Now that the Senate has undertaken the long-delayed task of investigating itself, let it do a thorough job. The committee on rules should ask for authority to summon witnesses and administer oaths, if it does not already possess that authority, and then it should call the roll of senators as witnesses.

THE NEW GOLF BALL.

Now that the United States Golf Association has formally approved a new ball, golfers throughout the country are anxiously awaiting an opportunity to try the infant pellet. The present ball measures 1.62 inches in diameter and weighs 1.62 ounces. The new ball, which will become standard on January 1, 1931, will be not less than 1.63 inches in diameter, weighing not more than 1.55 ounces. The ball and implements committee of the U. S. G. A. has never relinquished its interest since it first became interested in a standardized and improved ball five or more years ago, and it believes that the larger and lighter ball will meet with general approval and make the game of golf more interesting in all departments of play. The present ball is good for experts. But it is not, in the opinion of many, thoroughly satisfactory for the less expert player, inasmuch as it is difficult to raise from the turf and not easy to control on the green. The larger, lighter sphere, it is said, looks much larger in comparison with the old, is far easier to hit, and lies better under all conditions. It can not, however, be driven as far as the present ball. Exhaustive tests by experts and on driving machines indicate that it is some seven yards "shorter." The loss of distance is more than compensated for in better lies and more satisfactory "puttability."

Golfers have an open mind on this innovation. Those of experience realize that any ball is relatively hard to handle, and they have little expectation that the new pill will improve their game much. They realize, however, that the U. S. G. A. has tested exhaustively all types of spheroids, and they are ready to be convinced that the newly evolved globe is an improvement. They are particularly reassured by the opinion of Bobby Jones, who has played the ball under all conditions of wind and turf, and who indorses it without reservation. But they are more than anxious to make the acquaintance of the orbicular stranger and to test it for themselves.

NEW YORK WANTS TRIBUTE.

Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, called on President Hoover Wednesday to inform him that the people of that State are opposed to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway project, and that they will "fight the proposal every time it shows its head above water." He regards this proposed outlet to the sea a "direct menace to the prosperity, commerce and trade of the port of New York." But if the United States insists upon developing a waterway to facilitate movement of the great crops of the Middle West, New York will compromise on the construction of an all-American route by way of the Hudson River.

The great city of commerce is willing that the Western States should have a new waterway on condition that they pay tribute to New York. It is not satisfied with 25 percent of the entire foreign trade of the Nation. Having been choked with commerce for many years, it now cries for more. But the cries will have to be long and loud before Congress will ever be willing to pour the wheat exports of the country through that jammed and crowded bottleneck called New York Harbor. The chaos that followed the wholesale movement of troops and supplies toward New York during the war is a sufficient warning against further congestion of overseas traffic in one city. What the country needs is a new waterway from the Middle West, not a canal which would simply feed the gluttonous ambitions of New York middlemen.

The myopic selfishness of New York in seeking to exact tribute from a still larger portion of American commerce can only be equaled by that of Chicago in levying a duty on transcontinental travelers. Passengers traveling west from the Atlantic Coast States find that they can not pass through Chicago without the expense and inconvenience of transferring from one train to another. The schedules are so arranged that Chicago taxicabs, hotels, restaurants and traders are able to exploit every rail passenger who enters the city. Why the railroad companies allow themselves to become a party to such an outrageous holdup is difficult to understand.

Congestion of shipping and traffic in the great cities, solely to swell the incomes of freight handlers and hack-operating companies, is not only detrimental to the traveling and shipping public but injurious to the cities themselves. New York capital, which finances the great crops of the United States, can not afford to have exports bottled up in the Hudson River for the sake of giving New Yorkers a chance to collect petty tolls. Thousands of passengers deliberately route their trips so as to avoid the holdup at Chicago. It is not to be supposed that Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore and other Atlantic ports will sit idly by while New York lobbies for a canal that would further choke the export commerce of the Nation into one narrow channel.

VIRGINIA'S SPLENDID PROGRESS.

A notable review of Virginia's affairs was given this week by Gov. Byrd of that State at a luncheon in his honor given by the National Institute of Public Administration in New York.

Gov. Byrd has good reason to be proud of the achievements of his State. He noted the fact that since the close of the Civil War the wealth of Virginia has increased fourteenfold, which is almost twice the increase for some prominent Northern States. Since 1900 the output of Virginia's factories has risen in value from $100,000,000 to approximately $1,000,000,000 and is increasing at the rate of $100,000,000 per year. The State is rapidly taking a strong place in industry and at the same time holding its position in agriculture. The achievements of Virginia in recent years have not all been of an industrial nature, however. Virginia has been particularly fortunate in having a governor who realizes that development of the machinery of the State must keep pace with commercial enterprise. Gov. Byrd's address could not have been complete without reference to the reorganization of the State government which has taken place under his direction.

With the aid of the National Institute of Public Administration he has succeeded in modernizing the State government in many respects. More than 30 bureaus, boards and commissions have been abolished and all the executive functions have been delegated to 12 departments. Funds which formerly flowed through the hands of 48 different agencies are now collected and disbursed by a State treasurer. Under the new system the governor turned a deficit of $1,368,000 into a surplus of $2,596,000 within two years. At the end of the first year he was able to announce a specific saving of $800,000, and the increased efficiency of the systemized departments may result in still greater economy. Modernization of the tax system has brought an increase of $2,000,000 in revenue without any change in the tax rates.

Gov. Byrd is also known for his championship of the "short ballot" and of legislation limited to the actual needs of the State. He advocates a special legislative session at which attention would be given exclusively to the repeal of useless and obsolete laws. Other States which are seeking the straight and narrow path to economy and efficiency should find Gov. Byrd's version of progressive Statehood interesting reading.

NO DEBENTURE.

The conference committee on the farm relief bill appears to be hopelessly deadlocked. The House conferees are adamant in their opposition to the Senate debenture scheme and the three debt-ridden senators on the committee are just as obstinate. Not a few savants on Capitol Hill are trying to find a way of breaking the deadlock.

It was suggested that the House vote on the debenture provision to clear the atmosphere. The House refused to extend such courtesy to a provision which, in its opinion, the Senate had no right to originate. Then another scheme was hatched up whereby the tariff bill would have been recommitted to the ways and means committee with instructions to interpolate the debenture item. This would have forced a vote in the House on the ill-fated measure. But Representative Garner, Democratic leader, who was to have been the moving spirit in the plot, has decided to make no such motion. Evidently the Democrats in the House are not so anxious to desert the fundamental principles of their party as are those of the Senate.

It is difficult for the public to understand the object of the debenture-minded senators in asking the House to pass on their pet scheme. The House has already voted by an overwhelming majority for President Hoover's farm relief program. There is not the slightest excuse for asking another expression of its attitude. Nor can anything be accomplished by trying to insert the debenture scheme in the tariff bill. Its enactment into law is impossible, and the controversy might just as well be fought out now while the farm bill is under consideration. There can be but one outcome if the House will stand pat. The unholy combination of senators that proposed the debenture must yield.

PLAIN SPEECH IN JAPAN.

By MASANAO HANIHARA,
Formerly Ambassador to Washington.
(Translated from the Diplomatic Review.)

When we examine the foreign policy, especially the relations with China, of the Tanaka government for the last two years, we can scarcely repress a feeling of anxiety. Soon after its formation the government dispatched troops to Shantung. We do not necessarily oppose such a policy, although the army must not, as a matter of course, be mobilized without convincing reason. We do not think it timely to discuss the question, but we may be permitted to point out that the "strong" policy has reacted on Sino-Japanese relations and aroused undesirable suspicions in regard to the real intention of the government.

It aroused the suspicion of the world regarding the intention of Japan to China, caused the unprecedented Japanese exclusion movement in Manchuria, the rupture of negotiations with China and the failure of the South Manchuria Railway Co.'s loan in America. These results served the government right, and testified to the undesirable results of a foreign policy by party men and to the risk of its execution by inexperienced amateurs.

Our blundering foreign policy is attributable to the lack of experience of the responsible minister and proves that he is not equal to the task. Inexperienced statesmen taking charge of foreign affairs will find but failures and complications. Political parties are very powerful in Great Britain and the United States, yet care is taken in the selection of foreign secretaries.

The present government should have undertaken the rectification of its predecessor's errors in connection with China policy. The writer holds that the Wakatsuki ministry missed a chance to lead a concert of the powers in China. Although China is chiefly responsible for the indefinite postponement of the tariff conference, the powers must be blamed for having failed in effecting a mutual understanding to safeguard their common interests. They must answer for the illegal levy by China. Japan ought to have taken the initiative for the prevention of China from taking such steps. If Japan had taken it China would have been moderate. Great Britain's proposal respecting China of December 18, 1926, to the signatories of the nine-power treaty and the American Secretary of State's announcement of January 26 the next year demonstrated the absence of concert and permitted China to grow more ambitious and arrogant.

The treaty with Belgium expiring on October 27 of 1926, China intimated to the Belgian government her readiness to consider a provisional measure. This intimation was at first repudiated by Belgium, but eventually agreed to. Simultaneously the Belgian government referred the one-sided decision of China to the Washington participants, but they did not give due consideration to the note of Belgium. The government of Japan should have foreseen that it would soon find itself in the same boat and that China could be kept down only by concerted action.

It is understood that the Wakatsuki ministry was neglectful, though an informal negotiation for the revision of the Sino-Japanese treaty of commerce was then going on in Peking. Reasonable assistance must be rendered for the regeneration of China, yet the powers must stick to the principle of guaranteeing their just claims and interests by means of cooperation and harmonious action.

I have pointed out the faults and shortcomings of the preceding government in its China policy and I hoped for rectification by the present ministry, but my hopes have all failed. The result is the present difficulties. If losses in China can be compensated by gains elsewhere we shall be relieved of anxiety. But, have they been compensated? Relations with Great Britain, America and France have not been improved. Understanding with Germany is being promoted, but that is attributable mainly to her statelessness, whereas we hear a break with the Soviet urged.

Even speaking with reserve, the foreign policy of the present ministry has been unsuccessful and the prospect for the future does not appear bright. The appointment of a well-trained, experienced and able statesman as foreign minister is the first requisite for improved foreign policy, but this suggestion will be of no use as long as the parties are devoted to mud throwing. When internal politics are in an unwholesome state foreign policy can not be effective.

Man or Nation, An Injury to Any Part Injures the Whole.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

ONE prolific cause of the troubles that beset our civilization is provincialism. In rural districts and in great cities, the average man thinks in terms of his own immediate welfare and feels no interest in the problems of his fellow citizens who live beyond his horizon. The rural congressman thinks it his first duty to procure a Federal building for his home district; the inland farmer thinks it a waste to spend money for battleships and ship yards, and the "big taxpayer" in the East resents the expenditure of public money to control Western flood waters or fight agricultural pests.

One of the most liberal of metropolitan newspapers frequently scolds the Government for using the tax money taken from manufacturers to support the war on insects.

Just at present there is some complaint because a sum of four million dollars has been provided to fight the fruit fly in Florida.

Why use the public's money to save a few insignificant farmers? There is no appropriation to help the publisher whose plant burns or the manufacturer who loses money. Why discriminate in favor of one class? The answer is that all classes eat.

America is a paradise for insect pests because it isn't their natural home. In their native homes they have natural enemies that hold them in check. That is nature's little scheme of checks and balances to keep any one species from getting a monopoly.

And just as the great hoas of the tropics succumb to the intestinal worms of the victims they swallow, and our own wolverine or glutton is killed by the quills of the porcupine he gobbles, so every insect pest that threatens man's food supply has other pests that feed on him and destroy him.

But when these insect pests—these moths, weevils, worms and flies—are brought into America to live among the free, they are free indeed, for here they have no natural enemies.

They multiply by the billion and they cost America billions of dollars by destroying cotton, grain and fruit.

Government spends the taxpayers' millions each year to hold them in check, but this money is not spent to benefit the farmer alone.

Despite every effort of science, the pests take their toll every year, thus increasing the cost of every man's food; and if Government made no effort to destroy them, every tree would be barren and every field stripped, and the metropolitan editor would starve along with the farmer.

The stomach gets the food, but the head and feet get the benefit; and to an equal extent the whole of America benefits when one portion of it is saved from flood, pest or crime.

The man who can't think in national terms isn't big enough to be a citizen. America needs to learn that a submarine protects a cow pasture and that a cattle tick threatens the metropolitan banker.

DISAPPEARING GYPSIES.

The gypsies, a fast disappearing race, now number in all countries only about 7,000 or 8,000, writes a contributor in the Cincinnati Enquirer. They are most numerous in Asia and in northern parts of Europe.

Various opinions have prevailed at different times as to their origin. That they came originally from Egypt was the popular belief for a long time and this procured for them the name "Gypsies." For nearly 500 years they have been a wandering tribe, yet neither time nor place has succeeded in changing them in any way. No matter where he may be the gypsy, whether in Africa or northern Europe, is always the same. It is now generally agreed that the gypsies as a race came from Hindustan. Their language apparently has changed so little even after the lapse of centuries, during which they have been scattered through many countries, that nearly one-half of their words are precisely like those of Hindustani. Very little variation is found between the language of the gypsies in Turkey, Hungary, Germany and those of England and America.

One writer said: "These people did not bring any particular religion with them from their native country by which they could be distinguished, as the Jews did; but they regulate themselves in religious matters according to the country where they live. Being very inconsistent in their choice of residence, they are likewise so in respect to religion."

It is not certain when the gypsies first appeared in Europe, but mention is made of them in Hungary and Germany as early as 1417. Later they made their appearance in France and Italy. The earliest record of gypsies in England is found in an old book of laws. "For as much as before this time, divers and many outlandish people calling themselves Egyptians, using no craft, have come up into this realm and gone from shore to shore in great companies and used great subtlety to deceive the people, bearing them in hand that they by palmistry could tell men's fortunes; and so, many times have deceived the people of their money." It was afterward made a crime punishable by death for them to remain in the kingdom.

HOOSIERS.

"Hoosier," variously spelled, was previously used in parts of the South in the sense of a green, gawky and uncouth countryman, and it was first applied in ridicule to the early settlers of southern Indiana, says the Pathfinder. In time the term lost its contemptuous connotations and became the accepted nickname of the State and its inhabitants. This, at least, seems to be the most probable theory of the origin of "Hoosier" as applied to Indiana and it is supported by early usage. The first recorded use of the nickname occurs in John Finley's poem entitled "The Hoosier's Nest," written in 1830 and published in 1833. Finley stated that he heard the word in current use and had no knowledge of its origin. On December 29, 1833, a traveler named C. F. Hoffman wrote as follows in "A Winter in the West": "I am now in the land of the Hoosiers and find that long-haired race much more civilized than some of their Western neighbors are willing to represent them. The term 'Hoosier,' like that of Yankee, or Buckeye, first applied contemptuously, has now become a sobriquet that bears nothing invidious with it to the ear of an Indian." There is no reason to accept the theories which derive the word variously from "Husher," a bully who stills his opponents; "Husar," in reference to Col. Lehimowsky, the Polish husar, who did not go to Indiana until after the term was in common use; and "who's yer?" an alleged favorite inquiry on the part of Hoosiers when a stranger knocks at the door.

Doughboy Finds Many Sins Committed in the Name of Patriotism—Bob Quillen Hitting on All Cylinders, He Says.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Read an article in The Post by Bob Quillen. "While Others Argued About the Weather Noah Built the Ark." His are my sentiments. The law in this country should be enforced, inasmuch as it is the will of the majority.

In the column of comment I noted criticism of his article of the day previous, "There Were No Patriots When All Men Belonged to One Tribe."

Having traveled just enough in this and several other countries to notice that avarice and greed and sectional prejudice are responsible for much unbrotherly feeling, and having served my country in two military calls with a firm resolve to answer every call to arms as long as I live, it is my opinion that Mr. Quillen is hitting on all cylinders in this article. We will always have war, but it is not as God would have it. I think Mr. Quillen has a pretty fair idea of patriotism as the world regards it.

I don't think Mr. Quillen's articles will lose you many subscribers.

Bolivian Charge—Categorically Denies Statement That Bolivia Is Moving Troops Toward Paraguayan Frontier.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An Associated Press dispatch from Geneva is printed in your paper of May 23, stating that the Paraguayan Charge d'Affaires in Paris had laid before the League of Nations the allegation that the Bolivian government was preparing military action with the object of suddenly placing Paraguay in the presence of a state of war; that Bolivia was concentrating troops at points where the military outposts of the two countries were in touch; and that trains were leaving La Paz daily for the frontier, carrying troops and military material.

It is officially in a position to deny categorically the foregoing allegations. The Bolivian government is observing in entire good faith all its engagements under the protocol providing for investigation and conciliation of the Bolivian-Paraguayan controversy. No Bolivian troop movements are being made to the disputed zone nor toward it. The Bolivian government reposes entire confidence in the conciliation commission and will not take any action that might prejudice the cause of Bolivia in the eyes of that tribunal.

GEORGE DE LA BARRA,
Charge d'Affaires of Bolivia.

Government Cooperative Hotels a Means of Acquiring Homes by Poorly Paid Employees.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent issue of The Post appeared an article regarding Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, who seems anxious to provide dormitories for Government employees and is asking the Government for $5,000,000 with which to build these homes. The Government employees are not asking for charity, but they do, at least, like to have a living wage for the service they are giving the Government. They are now buying themselves homes at a greater sacrifice in these cooperative hotels which they have banded together to purchase, so that when they become too old to work they will, at least, have a home, and not have to do what some of the retired Government employees have been forced to do; namely, mortgage their homes for food and fuel after denying themselves comforts for years so that they might buy these homes.

With the high cost of living many of the Government employees are simply existing on the small salaries paid them. We feel sure that if members of the House and Senate knew how hard it was for Government employees to live they would have long since granted them a decent increase. Had it not been for the cooperative hotels encouraging and helping us to live, conditions would have been most blue for many of us. We are told by our hotel mother, who is our friend and is helping us in every way, that some of the wealthy men and women of the city have been asked to take stock in these buildings, but "they were not interested."

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEE.

Representative O'Connor Thinks Two Commissions Should Deal With Law Enforcement Problem, One to Find Facts and the Other to Draw Conclusions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with deep interest in today's Post the expressions of opinion of prominent statesmen concerning the personnel of the National Law Enforcement Commission named by President Hoover.

In my opinion sounder conclusions and better results would be reached if there were two separate and distinct commissions appointed, the function of the first being strictly a fact-finding commission. This first commission should represent a fair cross-section of American society and should include in its representatives of the liquor interests and industry. Perhaps a prominent representative of the manufacturer, the importer and distributor. By giving immunity to all witnesses such a commission through their hearings might gather all the facts, and it is concerning these facts that the war of words is being waged.

The facts so found and reported would then be submitted to the second commission, whose function and duty would be to draw conclusions from the facts, and to recommend to the Government the necessary law enforcement plan. This commission, unlike the other, should be limited to men experienced in enforcing the law, including judges, prosecuting attorneys and especially investigating and arresting officers, and, of course, should have a fair representation of eminent students of social and moral problems.

Such a divorce of functions would prevent the unconscious coloring of facts sought for or found to fit the conclusions desired may be wet or dry, but the facts should be assembled and let speak for themselves. The dry facts should not be dampened and the wet facts should not be dried.

CHARLES O'CONNOR,
House of Representatives, May 21.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

SUNSHINE after days of rain helped make a field day of the opening of the Davis Cup matches at the Chevy Chase Club. The gallery was international in its make-up and so colorful in its costumes as to divide interest with the play.

Mrs. Hoover entertained a number of guests yesterday afternoon to see the preliminary round between the United States and Japan in the most famous of international tournaments. Nearby the Japanese Ambassador and Mrs. Debut had a box, the group with them applauding as enthusiastically for the gallant players from Japan as did Mrs. Hoover and her guests for the United States Team.

In the White House box with Mrs. Hoover were Mrs. William M. Jardine, Miss Marian Jardine and the three charming Hutton girls—Katherine, Alice and Mildred—daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Claudius Hutton, who are visiting the President and Mrs. Hoover. They are old friends of Miss Jardine and occasionally have stayed with her here. Commander Joel T. Boone, the President's physician, and two aids, in white uniforms, completed the party.

Mrs. Hoover's costume was a two-piece suit, all in white, worn with a gray blouse and a small black hat. Miss Jardine seemed to be all in white, but it developed that she had a g.-in. dress beneath her white coat, and the Hutton girls made a charming trio in light summer frocks.

The German Ambassador and Mme. von Prittwitz and Gaffron had Baroness von Boettcher as their guest. The Spanish Ambassador, Senor de Pallas, came bustling in alone, but his daughters, Senorita Maria Padilla and Senorita Rosa de Padilla, were in the gallery—the latter looking like a Kentucky cardinal in a frock and hat of lipstick red. There were scores of smart red frocks to be seen. Miss Reine Glanville, daughter of the French Ambassador, sponsored a gay red and black print, with bright red hat, and wool suit of lacquer red, very smart, with a hat of stitched crepe, exactly matching it in tone.

The Minister of Sweden, Mr. Boström, once amateur tennis champion of Sweden, was an interested spectator. But Dwight F. Davis, former Secretary of War and donor of the Davis Cup, was an absentee. He had been expected to serve as a referee, but was detained in St. Louis. Pretty Miss Alice Davis was on hand to represent the Davis family. Senora de Medina was in the gallery—glancing on the outside looking in with a group including Senora de la Barra and Mrs. Sydney Gest. Mrs. Verker was another in the diplomatic group, as were the Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Prada. Counselor Cornelia Schenckel, Countess Alice Schenckel and Miss Jeanne Crestiano.

Costumes re Varied A In Colors and Designs.

While smart sport frocks were most numerous, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon and her daughter, Miss Alice Bacon, contributed a contrasting note by appearing in riding togs. Yellow was even more conspicuous as fashion's favorites than red. Mrs. Alexander Legare, in a box party with Mrs. Chandler Anderson, Mrs. James P. Mitchell and others, wore a yellow wool sport suit with a matching felt hat. Mrs. Charles Williams had on a charming ensemble of yellow tulle, the coat plain and the dress printed in small black figures, and a becoming yellow hat. And Mrs. Blaine Mallan had topped off with a small brown felt hat, a yellow jersey costume, the blouse of which was embroidered all over in a design of gold.

Mrs. Benjamin R. Holcombe also sponsored yellow, banana yellow, as to hat and blouse, and a pair of soft, checked wool vesting on chapeau in color.

Others in the assemblage that watched the play from boxes or bleachers and broke up between matches to gossip with friends or buy soft drinks from pretty Junior League girls, were Mrs. David Allen Reed, accompanied by Mrs. William R. Castle, Jr., Mrs. Walter Evans Edge, Mr. Jasper DuBois and Mr. Chester Lockwood, each with his pretty bride; Mrs. George Hewitt Myers, with Miss Persis Myers and Mrs. Reeve Lewis; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Mr. C. Beacom Kemp, Mrs. C. Doucerty, Miss Alice Shepard, Mrs. Theodore N. Gill and Mrs. Ormby McCammon.

Also Mrs. Francis Riggs, Mrs. Emmens Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kuriz, Mr. Bishop Hill, Miss Adelaide Brite, Miss Anne Devereux, Mr. Ashton Devereux, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gregg, Mrs. Sidney Tallaferrro, Mrs. John P. Jack, Mrs. William McClellan Ritter, Mr. Frederick Lee, Mrs. Frank Hight, Miss Phyllis Hight, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Horace MacFarland, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norment, Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey, Mrs. Joseph E. Davis, Miss Helen Gary, Mr. Edward Graham, Mr. Myron Parker, Mr. Harner Reeside, Miss Kath-of next season; Miss Rachel Davies and Miss Janet Sheppard.

Supper was served in the dining room—an especially charming apartment since it was redecorated recently under Mrs. Harriman's inspiration. A long room, with windows at both ends and a great fire place, its walls have been tinted a soft delicate green which serves as an excellent background for a collection of cartoons by famous humorists. Democratic in their leanings, which is one of the most treasured possessions of the club.

The table had a charming centerpiece of peonies, larkspur and lilies and great clusters of larkspur and peonies were used throughout the house. The ladies assisting in the dining room were Mrs. Thomas P. Bayard, Mrs. William H. King, Mrs. Frank Hiram Snell, Mrs. Harry Norris, Mrs. Joseph E. Davis, Mrs. J. Harry Covington, Mrs. Thomas Armat, Mrs. Thomas W. Page and Mrs. Hutton Thompson.

The Secret of Children's Photographs

The old-fashioned way of photographing a child is unsatisfactory, for the camera cannot be moved and the child must stay in just the right focus. There is no animation—just a still pose. A newly invented camera, owned exclusively by Underwood, permits the child to play unconcernedly while being photographed.

The secret of the new Underwood camera is that it is the world's only means for obtaining unposed pictures of the child in animated, natural moments. The cost is no more than the old way.

The Return OF OLD KING BRADY

TRACKING A "TRICKSTER" TO TENNESSEE.

CHAPTER SIX.
In the Moonshiners' Secret Den.
"DON'T shoot that man!" cried Old King Brady, as Bloomer pointed his rifle at Boston Ben. He sprang in front of the convict as he spoke.
Bloomer stared. "Well, now, what's all this?" he cried. "What call have you to interfere with my business?"
"You owe me fifty dollars, and an apology besides," said Old King Brady. "Besides, he is the only man living who knows the secret of the cave where the whisky is hidden."
Bloomer burst into contemptuous laughter. "Say, has Ben been giving you that yarn?" demanded the trickster. "Did you really believe it? Is that why you are down here in Tennessee?"
What the outcome of Old King Brady's bluff would have been is uncertain, for at that moment a wild-looking individual mounted on a white mule came tearing into camp from down the glen.
"Hurry up—the Highs have kerwalled the boys in the lower camp! Nine are dead and the rest have took to the hills. They're comin' down upon you on the dead rattle. Hump yourselves, I say!"
"Burning brimstone, this is Lella's work!" roared Bloomer.
"Whip 'em into their cave, Pete!" he added. "Put 'em along with the crazy Old Yank I brung down from Boston till we get this job off'n our hands." And Bloomer and his followers went dashing down the glen, yelling like demons.
"I'd like to see the fight," remarked Old King Brady to Boston Ben.
"It's my wife's work," replied the convict. "The High boys are her brothers. Old man, you saved my life, but if Bloomer doesn't put me out of business, the High boys will."
"Well, we are allowed to live for the present, it seems."

Old King Brady saw Ben shudder, and he held his tongue after that.
The Fight In The Glen.

Meanwhile the shots were crackling in the glen below, and suddenly a strange yell woke the echoes.

"Wah! Wah! Wah!" repeated over and over again.

"Dogsone them Highs! They're getting the best of our boys!" cried Pete, halting. "This Hyar are Lella's work!" He turned to look down the glen. Old King Brady and Boston Ben followed his example.

"The fight is on for fair!" exclaimed Old King Brady. "Our side seems to be getting the worst of it too."

"Which do you call our side?" snarled Pete. "Your side is no side at all, for yew're an outsider all together."

The fight was not exactly in full swing just then, for Bloomer's band was retreating up the glen, closely pursued by many mounted moonshiners, among whom was a woman. Now the band, rounding the turn in the glen, suddenly halted and threw themselves in line from wall to wall.

"They are going to make a stand," said Old King Brady. "Can they hold their own there, do you think, Pete?"

"Say, now! You got more nerve than any feller ever I see," growled Pete. "How dare ye talk to me familiar-like—hev some respect for yer betters, old man!"

At that moment the fight began. The High gang did not seem to realize that the halt had been made, and were taken quite unawares. The Bloomers, all remark, Pete locked the door and opened a raking fire, and for a moment the Highs wavered, but then emptied their rifles at the enemy. Several fell on both sides, and amid wild shouts and fiendish yells, a throng was taken while the old-fashioned guns were reloaded and the charge rammed home. At this the Highs proved to be the more expert, and they were the first to return to the fray. This gave them the advantage, and in another moment they had the Bloomers on the dead run, with the enemy in hot pursuit up the glen.

"Gee! They've knocked the stuffing out of us!" cried Pete. "Move on Ben. Make for the cave, or I'll put a ball through your head on my own account."

"I wish you would then," said Ben. "If I am destined to fall into Bill High's hands, I'm better dead."

"Have you no confidence in your wife's influence over her brothers?" asked Old King Brady, as they hurried on.

"She was made to appeal to them. I have nothing to hope for from Bill High."

"Hold yer jaw and git!" cried Pete. "We uns hasn't done fur yit, not by a jugful. Ben Bloomer will live to burn you at the stake, black traitor that you are."

"And that's what I never was," muttered Ben, as he halted before a wooden door set in the rocky wall against which they had come now.

In the Old Cave.

Pete produced a big key and proceeded to open the door. "In with you," he snarled. "You kin keep company with t'other Yank—it wouldn't surprise me a bit if Ben Bloomer decided to burn you all."

Having indulged in this cheerful remark, Pete locked the door and left Old King Brady and Boston Ben in the darkness of the cave.

Boston Ben now burst into a torrent of profanity, and raved away for a good ten minutes. Old King Brady listened until the croak's rage had somewhat spent itself.

"Are you done?" he asked quietly. "We had better discuss some plan to better our condition."

"It can't be done. However, I apologize—you did save my life a few minutes ago by your bluff."

"Is McNally in this cave?" "I suppose so, from what is said," answered Ben. "This is the place they usually keep their prisoners, but what does all this talk amount to? There is only one way out, and we can't escape."

"Would they really burn us at the stake, Ben?" "Not you; if you will pay ransom they will let you go free. I am doomed whichever side wins."

"And your wife?" "Oh, she's all right; the Highs win out. They are her brothers, and they never injure their own."

"Enough!" said the detective. "I now understand the situation. Next thing is for us to get free."

"I'd like to know how you can manage that."

"It's as easy as rolling off a log. Back up against me please."

"What for?" "Why do you question every move I make? So I can gnaw that rope apart, if you must know."

It was old and rotten and easily severed. In a moment Boston Ben was free.

"Have you a knife?" asked Old King Brady.

"No; they took mine from me."

"Put your hand under the back of my coat a little below the left shoulder and you will find one in a little pocket there."

"By thunder, that's a good way to carry a knife if you don't want it to be found."

"All right. Now cut away and make short work of it. There, that's better. Now for a little light."

"Feeling in another of his pockets, Old King Brady produced his little electric dark-lantern, which can be folded up flat. In a moment the light flashed about and Boston Ben was lost in wonder at the ingenious contrivance.

The cave was of considerable size and Old King Brady saw at a glance they were in a moonshiner's den.

"There has been a lot of business done here at some time," remarked the detective.

"You are right," said Ben. "This is their old still-house. Their new one is further up the mountain. Tell us what is to be done."

"I want Mr. McNally first of all," said Old King Brady. "Do you know where he is?"

"Follow me," said the crook. He hurried on into the depths of the cave, coming at length to a point where it narrowed down so that there was hardly room to walk single file.

"Is this the end?" asked Old King Brady, growing suspicious.

"No; there is a room beyond."

"Go ahead then."

Another chapter in this serial masterpiece is in tomorrow's paper—don't miss it! Old King Brady is after Bad Man Brown.

SUMMER on the RIVIERA

Victor combination. The lines will be simple and straight, and there will be no fur on the collar. For wear with it, I shall choose a white hat of classic lines, with a permanent ribbon of cream program, and I shall have other ribbons in the various colors and color combinations of the frocks which I may wear with the coat. These frocks will be of the simple two-piece type.

OUR Paris fashion editor writes of selecting a wardrobe for a holiday in Antibes, taking into consideration a limited income.

"To my notion," runs the letter, "the first step in choosing a wardrobe when one has only a limited amount of money is the choice of colors; for if one has a basic color, certain things can serve for more than one purpose, and still look well. The most useful basic colors for a resort wardrobe for the day-time are white, beige or gray—neutral tones. This summer, white will be the smartest of the three, especially when worn with contrasting accessories. In consequence, I would found my summer wardrobe on white, beginning with an all-white coat of soft tweed. It will not be pure white, but of a fabric composed of pure white and cream-white threads—a subtly sophis-

perhaps one in rose and one in yellow, and a pale beige one that I already have will be included.

"With this coat and hat, and three or four frocks, one is equipped for all bright days, from morning until night." In accordance with this information, we have selected some models to correspond with those mentioned by the Parisienne.

Uncle Ray's Corner
The Linotype Machine.

HAVE you ever watched a printer "set type"? It is a sight you ought not miss if you have a chance to see it.

When I was 15 years old, my grandmother bought me a printing press and some metal type. I managed to put pieces of type together, and to use them for printing letters and to reuse envelopes.

magazine was printed. It was equipped with a typesetting machine known as a "linotype." The name came from "line-of-type." I watched the man who operated the machine. He pressed certain keys, almost like the keys of a typewriter. When he pressed a certain key, a metal "die" would come down a slot. This "die" had the form of the letter pressed. Then another key brought down another die. When enough dies had come down to form the words of a line, the man pulled a lever and this pressed the dies against a casting wheel.

In many ways, not easy for me to see, modern lead was thus formed into a slug containing a line of words. These slugs were then put into a tray and when I touched one of them quickly after it was made.

Modern newspapers could not get along very well without typesetting machines. Several times I have taken children to visit newspaper plants, and they have been interested in the linotype machines. The operators set always willing to make slugs containing the names of their young visitors.

THE TIRED MAN'S SHOCK.
The weary man had quit the town and put his trunk in the trunk of a car. He had had the strength of him. He longed to know sleep's soothing balm. He longed for rest and peace and calm. And this he thought as home he turned. His cheeks were pale, his eyes were dim. A good night's sleep today I've earned. It pleased him well to think that he soon sheltered from the world would be. In contemplation, as a boy, Who long anticipates a toy, So he took infinite delight. In picturing his restful night. He saw his cherished easy chair And he was sprawled in comfort there. In just the thought of sitting still— His cheeks were pale, his eyes were dim. Unless you, too, have yearned as he To own an evening wholly free; Unless upon yourself you've said: At 9 o'clock I'll be in bed, You can not know or not guess This tired man's dream of happiness.

So sure was he that rest had come That he began a song to hum, But as he stepped the threshold o'er Keen disappointment struck once more. There stood his wife in evening gown And all his hopes came tumbling down. Said she: "Daddy, we are late, You know we've got a dinner date!" The judge who granted that divorce Never traced the causes to her source. But one charge written in her plea Was "once he used profanity!"

Refusal of Radio Set by Ballou Hit

Capital School Officials Not Progressive, Head of Manufacturers States. Washington Should Be Nation's Model, He Says.

RESULTS OF THE RADIO BALLOT WILL BE ANNOUNCED SUNDAY IN THE WASHINGTON POST
WATCH THE SCORE

By ROBERT D. HEINL

The recent action of the Board of Education and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, who refused the gift of a radio receiving set presented to the Truesdell School by the Truesdell Parent-Teacher Association was severely criticized yesterday by Major H. H. Frost, of New York, president of the Radio Manufacturers Association, who deplored the fact that such a gesture should have been made in the Nation's Capital "supposed to lead the way in things progressive."

Major Frost was apparently very much exercised over the matter and intimated that a resolution would probably be offered at the forthcoming convention of the Radio Manufacturers Association in Chicago, at which 30,000 manufacturers, jobbers and dealers from all over the country will attend, censuring the action of Doctor Ballou and the Washington School Board.

It is a coincidence that Major Frost's criticism should come at this time inasmuch as this afternoon there will assemble in the Capital at the call of Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, educators and leaders of the radio industry to consider the question of how radio can be used in school work, a thing the United States is behind other countries on, notably Great Britain.

Major Frost was apparently very much exercised over the matter and intimated that a resolution would probably be offered at the forthcoming convention of the Radio Manufacturers Association in Chicago, at which 30,000 manufacturers, jobbers and dealers from all over the country will attend, censuring the action of Doctor Ballou and the Washington School Board.

"Do Superintendent Ballou and the Washington School Board object to the school children hearing President Hoover when he addresses the Nation?" Maj. Frost asked. "His call for law enforcement," for instance, recently made before the National Press and broadcast throughout the land, should have been heard by every school student as well as adults. How are they to hear our President but by radio? Even in Washington the children are seldom able to get within sound of his voice when he is delivering a public message."

"Does Superintendent Ballou object to having senators and representatives discuss the problem of law enforcement before the children's ears?" Maj. Frost asked. "Does he object to their hearing the children's concerns given by Walter Damrosch, or to the children's hearing the words of a speaker to the country over the radio at great expense?"

At the time the receiving set was refused there was an intimation that tuning in on a jazz orchestra might not be conducive to the best interests of the curriculum.

"To be consistent in this line of reasoning," Maj. Frost declared, "the superintendent should remove all pianos, phonographs and other musical instruments now in the schools. They are less than controlled than the radio receiver. Some student might be tempted to approach the schoolroom piano after hours and try to play the air of a popular song."

"Radio programs are published every day. The teacher in charge can easily select the best of the country and range her program so that those desired can be heard. Increased efforts are being made by the national radio clubs and by individual stations to provide educational features in addition to those already being heard."

"It is too bad that Washington schools must lag behind in spite of the wishes of the parents and teachers to hear the country and the radio continually upon Washington and the action of the school board must cause surprise elsewhere inasmuch as many schools all over the country are equipped for radio reception or are in the process of acquiring receivers."

"Those with foresight and who are progressive are realizing the wisdom of applying radio to school work. Secretary of the Interior Wilbur is recognizing it officially in calling the conference of educators and radio executives to discuss the part the Federal government should play in the growing movement."

Among those who are expected to meet with Secretary Wilbur this afternoon are: M. H. Aylesworth, president, National Broadcasting Company, New York; William S. Paley, president, Columbia Broadcasting System, New York; Dr. Charles R. Mann, president American Council on Education; Dr. J. W. Crabtree, secretary, National Education Association; members of the Federal Radio Commission; Frank Cody, superintendent of schools, Detroit, Mich.; R. Robinson Shipley, New York; J. L. Clifton, Director of Education, Columbus, Ohio; and Dr. Harold Stonier, Educational Director, American Institute of Banking, New York.

INTERPRETS the MODE

"Soiree dete," dinner dress, soft and graceful in line, of printed chiffon in rose, gray and black—just the thing to wear on a rose-scented, moon-filled summer night.
(Courtesy of Joseph Paquin, Paris).

length at front and back is greater than at the sides—an effect particularly youthful and one which will be employed more especially on dresses for young misses.

Another skirt note is the fact that a number of designers, by way of variation from the standard treatment, which places skirt fullness at the back, are making models for the summer in which a considerable part of the skirt fullness is disposed at the front in various ways.

There will continue to be a great many skirt volants, especially on the sheerer materials, such as light silks and the new wool velvets. These volants will sometimes encircle the skirt, sometimes be arranged in a diagonal line. And not infrequently you will find these volants repeated on the bodice, encircling one or both armholes.

We know the loveliest lady who has a most delightful little Dutch blue and white kitchen! And apart from the two pair of wooden sabots, which sort of nonchalantly rest in the corner on the floor, the most delightful and in fact only other unmakeable articles are the lamp-shades.

We tell you how to make them, as well as after so many other appropriate and charming shades for every other room in the house, in this week's illustrated leaflet for which you may send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dore department of The Washington Post.

You, too, can have lamp-shades that will be written about!

All the garments we sketch for you are of course indications of the trend of fashion, being as they are exclusive models given to us and to us only to show in the American newspapers.

And you or any clever dressmaker can copy them from the illustrations. They are just ideas, you know—some one else's, and from them you can make charming frocks for yourself, frocks that exactly suit you, by simply changing this or that detail to make the garment more personally yours.

The fashion letter is a regular Sunday feature. Make a note to read it. Au revoir!

What Today Means to You
MAY 24
By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI." If May twenty-fourth is your birthday, the best hours for you are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 3:15 p. m., and from 7:30 p. m. to 9:40 p. m.; the danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 8 a. m., and from 4 p. m. to 6:15 p. m.

It is argued that pleasant events of an unexpected nature will occur May 24; also that new plans will be formed, and new ideas will be born. Your guiding star may be considered a lucky one.

The child born on May 24 will have a lively disposition, and will be fond of romance, travel and adventure. He will have little patience for small details, and will not be annoyed by the petty things which are inclined to worry many.

You have rather a misleading nature, owing to the short-life of many of your characteristics. You are capable of a very sincere enthusiasm for a short time, but it soon wanes when the newness of a thing wears off, and you are apt to leave things or people in the lurch. You make confident beginnings but you seldom "back up" to the real difficulties and toil which must be endured before anything is finished. If you could only school yourself to go on as you begin, you would meet with phenomenal success.

Successful people born on May 24: Silas Wright, U. S. Senator. John N. Starnes, temperance reformer. Maurice P. Egan, educator. Richard Mansfield, actor. George G. G. Barnard, sculptor. Queen Victoria of England.

WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

The way in which partners can cooperate in their bidding will be illustrated in a series of hands.

Contract Bidding Hand No. 1.

North: ♠ A K Q J, ♥ A K Q J, ♦ A K Q J, ♣ A K Q J. South: ♠ A K Q J, ♥ A K Q J, ♦ A K Q J, ♣ A K Q J.

South, Dealer; score love-all. West and East are supposed to pass whenever it is their turn to declare. Before reading the description that follows, make up your mind what you think the bidding should be.

The Correct Bidding.

South, with every suit stopped twice, would bid No Trumps; the only question would be how many. His hand counts: Spades 9, Hearts 8, Diamonds 4, Clubs 5—a total of 26. With four suits stopped, 21 justifies a bid of three No Trumps; it requires 27 to justify the slam-suggesting bid of four No Trumps. South, being one point short of the latter, should bid only three.

North, having a count of 9 (2 in Hearts, 2 in Diamonds and 5 in Clubs) would start the slam conversation. South's three No Trumps has shown a minimum of 21, and North with 9 (total for two hands 30) is justified in bidding one more. North could bid four No Trumps, or four Clubs. Four of a minor over three No Trumps means Ace or King-Queen, and is more informative than four No Trumps.

North bids four Clubs and South notes an excellent chance for a slam. North's bid has shown the King and Queen of Clubs and 4 points more; the winning of every Club trick is assured. North's extra points may be either the Ace of Diamonds or the Queens of Hearts and Diamonds. South can ascertain which by bidding four Hearts, knowing that if North has the Ace of Diamonds he will bid five Diamonds.

Not having the Ace of Diamonds and having made a minimum raise, North bids four No Trumps. This tells South that the Ace of Diamonds is adversely held, but that North has the two missing Queens. That makes it certain that the combined hands will be able to take every trick but the Ace of Diamonds. Consequently South, with perfect safety, can bid six No Trumps and is not tempted to bid seven.

It will be noted that the six No Trumps can be made easily, the Ace of Diamonds being the only trick lost.
